EDMONTON, ALBERTA

JANUARY 2, 1975

LYNNE BELL 1940-1974

A respected Edmonton journalist and friend of many on campus died suddenly December 14, 1974.

LYNNE BELL, 34, covered the University beat for the Edmonton Journal from 1968 to 1971—a lively and often controversial period. The Students for a Democratic University (SDU) were actively protesting local and foreign issues, and students generally were exerting pressure to become actively involved in the decision-making process.

Pressure was strong to open meetings of the Board of Governors, General Faculties Council, and the Senate to the University community, the public, and the press.

Controversial tenure cases were making headlines on and off campus.

Enrolment was increasingly rapidly and construction was making drastic changes to the appearance of the campus. Urgent, sophisticated planning based on growth rates of 27,000 to 30,000 students was taking place.

It was a complex, difficult, and challenging beat. Lynne Bell—who called herself “just a reporter”—instinctively knew where the action was and who was causing it. Her reporting was considered to be fair, honest, and intelligent and, combined with her personality, it earned her the friendship of many on campus.

Former President MAX WYMAN, commenting on Lynne's years here, said “I came to look upon Lynne as a personal friend. She had ability and integrity. Many times I was able to discuss University problems and concerns with her, off the record, and in no instance did she betray my confidence. She was fully aware of the interests and welfare of the University and always wrote her stories objectively.”

UNIVERSITY RECEIVES TELEVISION AWARDS

Two video tapes of television programs submitted by the University to the Instructional Media Festival have won awards. The festival is associated with the Canadian Educational Showplace held annually in the fall in Toronto. Both tapes were produced by the Department of Radio and Television.

Fifty-two video tapes were submitted from various institutions across Canada. Our two, plus sixteen others, won Awards of Merit. Four others were given honorable mention.

One tape, a 12-minute dramatization of the card game in the poem The Rape of the Lock, was produced by JULIETTE MC MASTER, Associate Professor of English. BRIAN KIENAPPLE directed the program.

The second tape, entitled Hands Off, was produced for and with the co-ordination of LESLIE GUE, Associate Professor of Educational Administration. RAPHAEL BEAUSSART was the Producer-Director in Radio and Television.

SOCIAL HOUSING GRANT RECEIVED

DON WIEDEMAN, Associate Professor of Extension, has received a grant of $18,800 from the Community Housing Division, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ottawa, on behalf of the Department of Extension so that they may offer a six-course citation program on the Management of Social Housing.

The grant has enabled the department to cover the research and development costs, as well as the other costs involved in the organization and administration of a new program. Bursaries are also available for those students who, because of lack of organizational education funds or personal financial constraints, would otherwise be unable to participate in the program.

The Management of Social Housing program (the first and only one of its kind in Canada) is designed to provide a broad knowledge of the management process for individuals and organizations involved in social housing.

Direct contact was made with approximately 40 individuals representative of the social housing environment, who aided in the planning and development of the program and who are now represented on the continuing Program Advisory Committee.

Interested persons wishing further information are asked to call GAIL KEDDY at 432-5060.

SEMINAR/WORKSHOP ON CINEMATOGRAPHY TO BE HELD IN BANFF

A seminar/workshop on cinematography, conducted by RICHARD LEITERMAN is to be held in Banff January 23 through 26.

Beginning with hard-core news journalism compared and contrasted with researched in-depth documentaries, the seminar focus will move to documentary features and later to straight features. Topics to be covered include: awareness of editing requirements and constraints; continuity and pacing; visual and audio composition; basic camera techniques; natural vs. studio lighting; climate disruption; time and budget pressures and many others. Time concentration on certain subjects will depend upon feedback from participants. The intent is to be open-ended and flexible.

The seminar/workshop has been designed for practising cinematographers, students, and journeymen and also for professionals who can see themselves benefiting from stimulating exposure to other mature, highly developed but adaptable cinematographic styles. Mr. Leiterman has agreed to bring his three cameras for workshop demonstration, which will be supplemented by courtesy equipment from suppliers serving the Canadian film community. Eight contemporary Canadian features will be screened in the evenings, and shorts and segments will be shown throughout each day. Applications should be sent to the Registrar, Banff Centre School of Fine Arts, Banff, Alberta T0L 0C0; telephone (403) 762-3391, before January 15. The fee for a participant is $50, and for an auditor $40. Accommodation is an extra $48 or $60 for either double or single rooms January 23 to 26 inclusive.
